

Request for FT Session 1, Lucas Denton

In my (Lucas Denton) class we worked on a very limited set of English phrases from the textbook. I would like to request that teachers focus mainly on only the content that has been practiced in class.

The language content is as follows:

- What do you do in the morning/ after school/ at night/on the weekend?
- How often do you cook dinner/drink coffee/hang out with friends/stay up late?
- I always/usually/sometimes/never ____

Students were instructed to listen to recordings including these phrases and speak them out loud as homework.

In class, we used a worksheet to practice the flow of conversation in a very controlled manner. I will attach the worksheet at the end of this document.

In our first FT session I believe the main goal is for students and teachers to get to know each other while testing out the limited language they have practiced. To that end I asked students to think of questions they wanted to ask the teachers in Japanese and have provided them with a translated copy. I will attach this as well. Students have not practiced this language in class so it may be a challenge for them.

I am planning for the first 20 minutes to be focused on the language content specified above, and reserve the last 10 minutes for students to ask some of these questions to teachers.

In class, I taught students two communication strategies.

One is the echoing strategy – to repeat what your speaking partner said when you couldn't understand it.

One is the rephrasing strategy – using other words to convey a word you don't know how to say.

The above applies to my classes 英語 | [スポ②/9] on Tuesday first period, 英語 | [スポ⑤/9] on Tuesday second period, and 英語 | [人文⑦/8] on Friday third period. Most students appear to have limited vocabulary knowledge and listening ability, so I would appreciate teachers speaking slowly and not challenging them too much at this stage.

Students in 英語 | [観光①/4] on Friday fourth period generally have higher speaking ability and therefore more liberty can be taken with conversations. Thank you.
